COLLEGE PROGRAMS

The programs in Women's Studies listed below are interdisciplinary: i.e., they combine courses in literature, language, or culture, with work in sociology, anthropology, economics, political science, history, philosophy, psychology, biology, and related fields. Some programs offer minors, others award the B.A., still others the M.A. Programs listed without a specific label offer a roster of elective courses. Where no chairperson is listed, either the program is still in the process of organization or it has chosen to function through a committee, rather than a single individual.
